COURT HOUSE REPAIRS COST COUNTY $95,580.79

Improvements, Including Heating Plant, Amount to $122,052.

AUDITORS' REPORT OUT

Shows Cost of Badly Needed Repairs to County Buildings—Court House Item Includes One-half of Cost of New Heating Plant.

County Commissioners Woodring, Zimmerman and Dunlap this week made public, and the same is embodied in the Auditors' report, a statement in which it is set forth that the cost of remodeling and repairing the Court House building was $95,580.79. This item covers the money expended on the building, alone. Other repairs, including necessary changes in heating, etc., in the county jail, increase the total to $122,052.56.

The statement bears the signatures of Messrs. Woodring, Zimmerman and Dunlap and is based on the figures taken from the official records. The cost of repairs to the Court House building, inside and outside, together with the cost of the new addition in the rear, electric wiring and fixtures, gas pipes, repairs to front porch, etc., amounted to $89,765.79. The cost of the heating plant for the Court House and jail, one-half of which benefits the jail, was $11,630.00, while $14,388.77 represents the cost of installing new files, vaults and safes for official records, and also the cost of furniture for the court room and offices of the Judge, District Attorney, etc. The item for concrete pavements, retaining walls, waterways, water pipes, etc., was $6,268.00. In the total cost of $95,580.79 for the Court House building is included one-half of the cost of the heating plant, or $5,815.00.

When it was first proposed remodeling and repairing the Court House, as had been frequently recommended by Grand Juries, many persons predicted that the work would not be done at a cost under $100,000. The official figures, which are included in the Auditors' statement, show that the work on the building not only could be but was done for less than $100,000.

COURT IN SESSION

Few Criminal Cases but Large Civil List Being Disposed of.

Court convened on Monday, last, with a comparatively small criminal list but a large number of civil cases to be disposed of. D. A. Grove, farmer, of College township, was chosen foreman of the Grand Jury.

The civil list was called over and the following cases were disposed of:

The first case taken up was that of W. H. Johnstonbaugh vs M. S. Betz and Gabriel Betz; appeal. The plaintiff contended that in 1905 he contracted with a Mr. Hudson to furnish some lumber at Jacksonville for the erection of a shop; that he called on the defendant and asked that they guarantee the payment in as much as the shop was to be erected on premises in their control. The plaintiff testified that no such payment had been guaranteed. The defendants denied having given any such guarantee or having made any contract for the lumber. Verdict in favor of plaintiff for $105.05, subject to a question of law reserved by the Court.

A MAGNIFICENT GIFT

Presented to the Y. M. C. A. by Mrs. Margaret H. Wilson.

On Friday last, it was made known that Mrs. Margaret H. Wilson, one of the wealthiest women in Bellefonte, had become the first philanthropist to give anything to the town.

She has been keeping her eye on the Y. M. C. A., thus noticing the excellent work being done there by Secretary R. L. Weston. Wishing to broaden the usefulness of the Y. M. C. A. in the community Mrs. Wilson has consented to contribute about $10,000 for the building of an addition to the present structure, in which will be placed a modern swimming pool. The pool will be about fifty feet long and a little over twenty-five feet wide. It will be constructed of cement and lined with the very finest material for that kind of work.

The new building will be located on the west side of the gymnasium and will be thoroughly equipped for the purpose intended. The gift came unsolicited and was a great, as well as a pleasing surprise to the board of directors, members and the public in general.

Why We are Late.

"The Republican" will not reach our regular subscribers on time this week, due to the fact that we were delayed in receiving the composition for publishing the Auditors 'statement. As we understand the law the statement must be published within ten days from the time it is completed and certified to by the Auditors. This necessitated publication of the same in this week's issue of "The Republican." We beg the indulgence of our readers, assuring them that we made every effort possible to prevent the delay.

Fire at Waddle.

Saturday morning about 10 o'clock, the large bank barn on the farm of George Stevenson, near Waddle, mysteriously caught fire and burned to the ground, together with several out-buildings. The stock and most of the farming implements were saved. The loss in hay, straw, wheat, and oats together with the barn will amount to about $1500. The insurance is nearly $1000. At the time of the fire Mr. Stevenson, who is a well digger, was working in Sinking Valley.

THIEVES VISIT HOME OF GENERAL BEAVER

Take $7 Belonging to Mrs. J. Allison Platts, Guest of Family.

OTHER HOUSES ROBBED

Gold Watches and Small Amounts of Money Taken from Residence of Dr. J. E. Ward—Overlooked Wallet Containing Larger Sum.

For the last few months the residents of Bellefonte have been more or less terrorized by what seems to be a gang of midnight marauders or petty thieves. It seems that all they are after is the almighty dollar. Policemen Dukeman and Justice have been on their tracks but as yet have not been able to catch them.

On Tuesday night they entered the residence of Gen. James A. Beaver through a side window that happened to be unlatched. They went through the rooms on the first floor but finding nothing in the shape of the long green they ventured upstairs. The first room they entered was "Tom" Beaver's. "Tom" was in bed all right but his sleep was so sound that he failed to hear the intruders. The burglars gathered up his everyday clothing and began searching for money.

Dr J. Allison Platts and wife were guests at the Beaver house, and on going into the room of Mrs. Platts the thieves took from her hand satchel, on the bureau, $7 in cash. There were other trinkets in the satchel but these were left untouched. From Mrs. Platts' room they went into the room of Miss Mary Strunk, a domestic in the home, and she, too, didn't know that there were men in her room or the other members of the household would have learned of it. Here they secured $6 in cash. After rummaging around still further up stairs the thieves came down and went at the back door facing on Curtin Street. When on the outside they began searching for money in the clothing of Thomas Beaver but finding none they left the garments lying on the terrace where "Tom" could see them when he looked from his bedroom window.

On Wednesday morning, when the theft was discovered Mrs. Beaver presented to Mrs. Platts as much money as she had lost, which was very kind and heartily appreciated by Mrs. Platts.

The next house entered that same night was that of Dr. J. E. Ward, which is located on Curtin Street, a short distance east of the Beaver residence. Here the burglars gained an entrance through a small window leading into the dining room. Securing no money down stairs they made their way up stairs to the sleeping apartments of Mr. and Mrs. Ward. They first searched the Doctor's clothing and succeeded in securing $7. In their hurry, however, they overlooked a wallet in the Doctor's coat that contained a larger sum of money. Besides taking $7 they took the Doctor's gold watch from his vest pocket. The top drawer of the bureau was removed and carried down stairs, where it was ransacked. In it they found Mrs. Ward's gold watch, which they converted to their own use. They also took with them the Doctor's best hat, but when they reached the Beaver residence they threw it onto the lawn. "Tom" Beaver afterward found it and took it to the Doctor's office.

From the Ward residence the thieves went to and entered the home of assistant postmaster William Chambers, but it was a waterhaul as they secured nothing.

They later attempted to enter the home of Mrs. Evelyn Rodgers, on North Allegheny Street. After opening a window the thieves encountered some potted plants. Some of the plants were removed bnt in doing this the thieves evidently thought they had been detected and rather than take chances they ran away. The plants removed from the Rodgers house were frozen when found on Wednesday.

OLD SOLDIER DIES

J. H. McKelvey Stricken; Confined Many Months in Rebel Prisons.

John H. McKelvey, an old soldier in Bellefonte, answered the last roll call at his home, on East Lamb Street, on Saturday night, about 11.40 o'clock. For several months he had been suffering from a complication of diseases, but it was not until Wednesday of last week that he was compelled to take to his bed. He was born in Kalamazoo, Mich. and was 65 years of age. He came into Pennsylvania in 1865, and finally located in Altoona and then at Martha. For a number of years he was in the employ of the Pennsylvania Railroad Co., as a brakeman. On June 30, 1893, he was in the act of coupling cars at Kittanning Point, when he was so unfortunate as to lose an arm. After he had gotten so that he could oe about again he started to work but he soon found he was handicapped. He was then retired with a certain amount of pay from the railroad company.

Mr. McKelvey was an old soldier of the Civil War being a member of Co. L, 5th Cavalry, Pennsylvania Volunteers. He was of a daring disposition, and on the 12th of October, 1863, he was captured at Sulphur Springs, Va., after which he served thirteen months and eight days in the following prisons: Libby, Bells Island, Pemberton and Andersonville.

About two years ago he came to Bellefonte, where he lived a retired life. He was a pleasant gentleman, having quite a number of friends in Martha, Bellefonte and other places. He is survived by a wife and the following children: M. F., of Altoona; Rev. H. A., of Port Matilda: Mrs. H. M. Kobel and Mrs. Clyde Silvius, of Sunbury, and Mrs. C. Peters, of Tyrone. The remains were taken to Martha, on the 1.08 train on Tuesday afternoon, where the funeral was held in the church at 2 o'clock. Interment at Martha.

For over two years she had been a patient sufferer from cancer. Her age was 62 years, 11 months and 4 days. She was truly a good woman, and for years was a member of the Reformed church. She is survived by six daughters who are as follows: Mrs. William Bridge of Jersey Shore; Mrs. George Tate, of Yeagertown; Mrs. Newton Dorman, of Avis; Mrs. Russel [illegible] of Jacksonville; Mrs. Elaine Noll, of Mt. Union and Sarah at home.

She is also mourned by the following brothers and sisters: Alfred, of Nebraska: Cinceria, of Detroit, Mich.; John, of Greensburg: Charles, of Jacksonville: Mrs. Laura Martin, of State College: Mrs Mary Schaeffer, of Madisonburg; Mrs. Tillie Peck, of Huston; Mrs. Ida Holmes, of Nittany. The funeral took place on Saturday.

Special Services in U. B. Church.

Next Monday evening, March 6th, Rev. R. G. Sawyer, an able evangelist of Youngwood, Pa., will begin a series of evangelistic meetings in the United Brethren church, of this place, which no doubt will prove interesting. Rev. Sawyer is said to be an excellent speaker, and the public is cordially invited to these services. On Sunday, March 5th, communion and baptismal services will be held, both morning and evening, at which time all children presented for baptism will receive the attention of the pastor. On Monday evening, after Rev. Sawyer's sermon, the congregation will hold their second quarterly conference.

New Announcements.

Two new entries for nomination for County offices were announced this week, as may be seen by referring to another column in "The Republican." Harry H. Diehl, of Boggs township, makes formal announcement of his candidacy for the Republican nomination for Prothonotary. Isaac Miller, the carpenter, who was in the field for nomination for Overseer of the Poor in Bellefonte borough, this week concluded to become a candidate for nomination for County Commissioner on the Republican ticket. Mr. Miller says that it is his intention to wage an active canvass for nomination at the primaries.

A Birthday Surprise.

The ladies of the Bellefonte Chapter Knights of the Golden Eagle sprung a surprise on Mrs. Philip Garbrick at her home at Coleville on Tuesday evening. It was her birthday and about twenty-five of her friends called on her to pay their respects and wish for her many more happy years. During the evening elegant refreshments were served and a general good time was the result. Mrs. Irvin Tate was the prime mover in getting up the little surprise and she never does things on the halves. Thelma and Mildred Tate, two little daughters of Mrs. Tate, received special attention from those present. The evening was one long to be remembered.

Witmer Smith Married.

On Thursday morning Witmer Smith, manager of the American Union Telephone Co's interests in Bellefonte, and his financial secretary, Miss Elizabeth Smith, left Bellefonte on the early train over the Central Railroad of Pennsylvania for Williamsport, where they were married. They returned to Bellefonte on Monday morning. The bride is the daughter of the late Peter Smith and is an exceptionally fine young lady who will make a most excellent helpmate. The groom is one of Bellefonte's energetic young business men but he forgot to speak the truth when we asked him about his wedding last week.

J. Wallace Lytle, of Scotia, one of the men in the new Chemical Closet Company, was among those doing Grand Jury duty this week. Wallace makes a first-class juror.

GOLDEN WEDDING OF MR. AND MRS. CONLEY

Anniversary of Wedding of Fifty-Years ago Celebrated Monday.

GREETED BY FRIENDS

Happy Event Enjoyed by Large Throng of "Young" Coupie, Near Centre Hall—Mr. Conley is Father of our Fellow Townsman.

Good fellowship and true fraternity reigned supreme at the 50th wedding anniversary of Mr. and Mrs. John Conley, celebrated at their home about one mile east of Centre Hall, on Monday from 10 a. m. to 3 p. m. There were about one hundred and fifty guests present, many of them being from a distance. The parlor of the home was transformed into a flower garden, which made the environment quite attractive. In the room was a large arch of spruce and laurel interwoven with white and gold. Beneath this beautiful arch sat the bride and groom of fifty years ago. They looked as happy and contented as if they were still in their youth and vigor.

Mr. and Mrs. Conley have lived in that vicinity since 1872, having gained the love and respect of the people not only in that vicinity but throughout Penns Valley. They have been industrious and very prosperous through life. Mrs. Conley's maiden name was Miss Catherine Keller, daughter of John Keller. She was one of the prettiest young ladies in all that section of the county. No wonder that Mr. Conley has been so proud of her for these many years. In May, next, she will be 71 years of age. We know that a woman is just a little bit reluctant about having her age made public, but Mrs. Conley will please pardon our referring to it at this time.

On the 2nd of April, next, Mr. Conley will be [illegible] years of age. He has been one of the most industrious and progressive farmers in Penns Valley, occupying a high place in the respect and confidence of the people with whom he daily comes into contact. He has held positions of trust in the community and has always proved an efficient official. He has not been well for the last couple of months but is improving right along, and it is to be hoped that this may continue until he regains his usual good health. He is a man who has always been strong and robust and his present illness is rather hard on him.

Mr. and Mrs. Conley have two sons living, James K. Conley, of Freeport, Ill., and J. Will Conley, of Bellefonte. They both occupy creditable positions in their respective communities and are getting along nicely.

Died at Coburn.

On Wednesday of last week, about 9 o'clock, Mrs. Emanuel Vonada, died at her home after an illness of about one year with dropsy and diabetes. She was 57 years of age and was born in Haines township. Her maiden name was Miss Louisa Vonada. She was a lady held in high esteem by all who knew her, was a member of the Reformed church and lived a consistent Christian life. She is survived by a husband and two children: Viola and Charles, who reside at home. The funeral took place at Woodward on Sunday morning.

Death at Gatesburg.

After an illness of but a few days, Henry Clapper died at the Dearmott home, at Gatesburg, on Saturday morning of last week. His death was due to bronchial trouble. He was aged 75 years and had just sold his farm and arranged to round out his years at Clappertown, Pa., to which place his remains were taken for interment on Monday. He is survived by two brothers. Deceased had been a resident of Gatesburg about four years, during which time he won the confidence and respect of all who knew him.

Bishop Hamilton Speaks.

Bishop Hamilton, of Boston, spent Sunday and Monday in Bellefonte as the guest of Hon. and Mrs. P. Gray Meek. On Sunday he occupied the pulpit in the Methodist Episcopal church. His discourses were wonderful productions, showing a masterful mind. On Monday morning he made an address before the Bellefonte High School and in the evening delivered an eloquent lecture in the Methodist church before a large and appreciative audience. On Monday morning he received a telegram from Boston stating that his wife had been taken to the hospital where an operation had been performed. He was about to leave on the noon train for home when he received word that his wife was getting along nicely. He then consented to remain and deliver his lecture. He left the same night on the 8.16 train.

DELIGE HEARS FATE

Listens to Reading of Death Warrant; Shows Slight Concern.

Bert Delige, in his cell in the County jail, yesterday listened to the reading of the death warrant fixing the date for his execution as Tuesday, April 25. He will be hanged on that day, in the jail yard, between the hours of 10 o'clock A. M., and 3 o'clock, P. M. This is specified in the death warrant.

Sheriff Hurley received the Delige death warrant from Governor Tener early yesterday morning. Accompanied by Deputy Sheriff Fred Rees he proceeded to Delige's cell. With Deputy Sheriff Rees and Thomas Fleming, one of Delige's guards, as witnesses, Sheriff Hurley read the warrant. Delige was slightly nervous but otherwise appeared unconcerned. At the conclusion of the reading of the death warrant, Delige's only comment was:

"Its Tuesday, April 25?"

"That is the date fixed in the warrant," was Sheriff Hurley's reply. Delige manifested no sign of emotion and no desire for any further comment and Sheriff Hurley and Deputy Sheriff Rees returned to the jail office.

Has Fine Lumber Contract.

George Simcox, of Pine station, was a genial visitor in Bellefonte on Friday of last week. On Monday Mr. Simcox resumed lumbering at Pine station, where he has a fine contract that will require several years to handle. He is a splendid, energetic young man and is making a gratifying success in his line.

ADDITIONAL LOCALS.

On another page will be found a column of good locals.

The Misses Newman, who now reside at [illegible] A. Peck's barber shop, will move to Altoona on April 1st, where they will make their furture home.

John Uzzle, the popular proprietor of the Washington House, at Snow Shoe, was coming down stairs on Friday morning, last, when he tripped and fell, cutting his head in two places and injuring his side. Mr. Uzzle is nearing his 80th year.

William James Calder died suddenly Tuesday morning at his home in Harrisburg. He took a course at Pennsylvania State College and graduated in the class of 1875. He will be remembered by quite a number of the older residents of Bellefonte.

Earnest Levey, of State College, while waiting for his case in court to be called on Tuesday morning was seized with a severe attack of asthma. Liveryman Christ Beezer was called and took him to the home of Mrs. Harding, on Penn Street.

George Wall, who for years has been in the coal business at Milesburg, has retired from active business. John McCoy, of Bellefonte, has decided to fill the breach by starting a coal yard at the Linn & McCoy's iron works. The opening is a good one and John is just the man to slide into it kind and make 'er go.

The D. Z. Kline house, on Spring street, recently purchased by Dr. John Sebring, caught fire on Wednesday night, about 10.50 o'clock, from mysterious cause. It originated under the roof over the kitchen and dining room. The roof was practically burned off, and considerable damage was done by water. The loss is between $200 and $300, partly covered by insurance.

"The Republican" is indebted to Mrs. Maggie B. Gates, of Pine Grove Mills, for a kindly letter received yesterday in which she enclosed a neat one dollar bill to advance her subscription to well toward the close of the present year. We wish to assure Mrs. Gates of our appreciation and also to express the hope that she finds "The Republican" an interesting and welcome visitor to her home each week.

William Resides, the well known carpenter, dropped into our office on Monday and had himself enrolled as a subscriber to "The Republican." William is a genial, jovial fellow, with a host of admiring friends, and we are proud to place his name on the rapidly growing list of regular readers of this newspaper. "I like 'The Republican' very much", said William when he handed us a one dollar bill with instructions to enter his name as a subscriber. And that is exactly what a great many persons are saying these days.

Milton Willard, who served his time on the battleship, "Georgia" is now in Bellefonte at the home of his parents Mr. and Mrs. D. I. Willard, on Thomas Street. He was at Guantonoma Cuba, when his time was up. He stopped there and then and was transported to New York City on another boat. Mr. Willard was one of the electricians on the boat and received an honorable discharge, and should he reenlist he is certain of a promotion. In the four years he was on the ship he was not ill a day which is a good record. He will take a little rest for awhile and it is probable that he will return to the sea which has special attractions for him. Mr. Willard was once around the world and he was on his way back from England when his time expired.

Events Recalled By Quaint Old Papers

The second and concluding chapter of Thomas H. Murray's article on "The Early Bar of Clearfield County," published in the Clearfield "Raftsman's Journal," contains much of interest concerning Centre County, as did the first installment, extracts from which were presented in these columns last week. Mr. Murray, after describing the establishing of the first Court in Clearfield County, told of the character of cases first disposed of, many of which were trivial and of little consequence. In this connection he called attention to the disposition now to settle such cases out of court. Continuing Mr. Murray writes as follows:

Another observation is the amount of machinery and legal talent both on the Bench and at the Bar which was found requisite at that early day to transact a very small amount of business. Complaint is now made about the continuance of causes, about the costs incurred from that and other delay. They bear no kind of proportion to the evil of that kind afflicting the county at an early day.

Another observation is the inquiry which naturally suggests itself how it was possible for the lawyers of that day to make a living out of the small cases which got into court and the small number of them which were promptly disposed of. It can only be explained by the fact that people spent much less money for their living than they found to be necessary in these later days.

Another fact which we cannot overestimate is the value it was to the people of this county and particularly the Bar of this county that the judges who came during the period to which I have referred to hold our courts and the lawyers, both here and elsewhere, who then practiced in these courts, were men of such marked ability and such high personal character. More than we can now estimate they established a standard of ability and ethics which has been of inestimable value to the public and to the courts of this county. I think it can be fairly said that of the seven Judges who presided in this county during the period I have referred to there was not one of them whose character for integrity had ever been questioned.

Another fact of importance is that a contrast between those early days and the conduct of business during recent years will show that while there never has been a time when greater talent was found both on the Bench and at the Bar than during that period, it is nevertheless true that here has not been a period in the history of our county when business was disposed of both by the Bench and by the Bar with as great promptness and efficiency and ability as right during the period in which we are living.

Lawyers never tried their cases better, and they were never more promptly and satisfactorily disposed of by the courts.

Another observation justified by this comparison is that the character of the litigation at the present time is such as to involve quite as much difficulty as in any preceding period in our history. It is true that during the early period which I have reviewed there would occasionally be a case of commanding importance and presenting novel questions, but it is characteristic of the time in which we now live that not only are cases presented continuously involving large amounts, but also involving difficult questions of practice which the courts have rarely, if ever, heretofore been called upon to meet and dispose of. I think the most marked feature in the litigation of today, not only in this county, but in many other counties, is that out of the multiform branches of industry which have sprung up there have come new questions to be met and disposed of by the Bar and Bench upon which our proceding litigation has given us but little light. That these questions are as well met and well disposed of as they are reflects great credit upon the Bar and the Bench of today.

I venture to suggest that one great reason why there has been improvement in the dispatch of business by the courts in later years is that in the early days lawyers had a kind of monopoly of prestige. There was much less general intelligence among the people, the lawyers were farther away from them because they were trained men. What they did was supposed to be what was required of them without any very close inquiry. The intelligence of the people has so greatly increased that a professional man, a lawyer particularly, because his work is to a large extent in the public eye, is more likely to be taken for just what he is. There is closer and more intelligent criticism of his conduct, closer inquiry into the method of conducting his business and as a result of this he is compelled to be more efficient in order to sustain himself and his profession than was the case formerly.

A final observation justified by the review I have made is how very few cases were settled in the early days. There was no difficulty in keeping a case on hand a long time; there was no difficulty in lengthening it out so that you can hardly trace it on the record, but rarely indeed does the record show the settlement of a case. The reason for this probably is that there were only so many cases on hand and there were so many lawyers to provide for and unless the cases were guarded and protected and kept on the record there would be a shortage in the supply.

I think we can look back over this review feeling as I have already indicated that we have not been retrograding but that we have been as we should have been, continually advancing as the years have come and gone; and when someone comes to review the history of our time, they will find in it enough to justify them in the conclusion that we have made some advancement upon those who have preceded us.

We must also be impressed by the review here made that only a few of the lawyers of the early time took strong root in the soil from which they drew their subsistence and fame. I mean by this that only a small proportion of the whole number deeply impressed themselves upon their day and time. Of those who did none were of distinguished ancestry or noble birth. A few of them were college men but they were not more efficient than others who were less favored in their education. The man who rose to the highest distinction at the Centre county Bar was John H. Orvis. He was a native of Clinton county and received his education in a little log school house in the village of Howard. The man who, by common consent, rose to highest place at this Bar was William A. Wallace, who received his education at the old Clearfield Academy. It will be observed that none of those who obtained eminence practiced law merely for the pecuniary compensation which they obtained thereby. A close study of the lives of these men will disclose the conviction that the largest factor in their success was their capacity to have an adequate estimate of the demand which their profession made upon them. It was this large notion of their relation to their profession that impelled them to pour into its work all of the best energy of their lives. The satisfaction they received was the consciousness of their power to master intricate problems and thereby to protect the rights of those who submitted their highest interests to their hands. There is no such thing as a man failing in this profession who is capable of having a just estimate of his profession and the demands it makes upon him.

Joseph B. McEnally, who passed away in January of this year, at the age of 85, presided in this county in 1868 from the retirement of Judge Linn down to the first of January, 1869, by appointment of the Governor. The short time he was on the Bench fully vindicated the claims of his friends that he was well fitted for the place. His mental operation adapted him better to the Bench than the Bar, and his high personal character secured to him both the sympathy and the confidence of his brethern with whom he had so long practiced, during his short administration of the judicial office. All of the men, therefore, who presided in this county up until 1869, with the exception of Woodward and McEnally, were residents of Bellefonte.

Not only the Judges were from Centre county but the conduct of the business up until after 1850 and not long before the Civil War, probably about 1855, was to a great extent by lawyers of Bellefonte. Up until near the time he was elected Governor in 1860 Andrew G. Curtin practiced in this county. He was admitted to the Bar here on May 22nd, 1837. He never was a close lawyer, and the record will show that in close difficult cases he had associated with him here such men as Josiah W. Smith, and in Centre county James T. Hale, but his inimitable manner and his eloquence gave him great power over a jury, and he made an impression upon the people who attended court in his time that will never be forgotten. He was always ready whether in court or at a political meeting, and was equally interesting there or among a company of friends, relating anecdotes, which, when told by him, never grew old. In his prime he had no superior, if any equal, in Pennsylvania for these qualities: Graceful dignified presence, power or mimicry, interesting conversation and eloquent speech.

Let me close this address and enforce the thought I desire to leave with you by commending to you this estimate of the obligations which the profession of the law imposes, from the language of a lawyer of the olden time:

"The profession of the law is that, of all others, which imposes the most extensive obligations upon those who have had the confidence to make choice of it; and, indeed there is no other path of life in which the unassumed superiority of individual merit is more conspicuously distinguished according to the respective abilities of the parties. The laurels that grow within these precincts are to be gathered with no vulgar hands; they resist the unhallowed grasp, like the golden branch with which the hero of the Eneid threw open the adamantine gates that led to Elysium."

CORN GROWING CONTEST

Interesting Event for Boys Planned at State College.

In order to interest the boys of the farms and to improve the character and yield of corn, a corn growing contest in the several counties in the State has been planned by the School of Agriculture and Experiment Station of State College. A corn show will be held at State College during Farmers' Week, at which the several winners in each county shall be entitled to enter for sweepstake prizes. The conditions of the contest in each county shall be as follows:

1. This contest is open to any boy in Pennsylvania whose age does not exceed 20 years.

2. The corn shall be grown on a plot containing 40 square rods or one quarter of an acre.

3. Any variety of corn may be used. The contestants must select the seed, plant the crop, fertilize it and cultivate it as they may see fit.

4. Each contestant must make a report covering the variety grown; manner of selection of the seed; results of germination tests; character of soil, and its treatment previous to planting; method of planting; kind and amount of fertilizer used; dates and character of cultivation, and dates of planting and cutting.

5. The plot of ground must be measured by two disinterested parties. One of the witnesses shall be a farmer and the other a teacher in the public schools or the pastor of a church. If these men are not available the County Superintendent, or the person in charge, in each county shall designate others to perform this service. The husking must be done, and the corn weighed in the presence of the same individuals. Very immature, mouldy or rotten corn shall not be included. The corn shall not be husked until it is in good cribbing condition and the witnesses must specify the condition of the corn.

10. Ten of the best ears shall be selected by each contestant and these will be judged by some competent person. These ears may be exhibited at some convenient place in each county at the time of judging. The conditions under which the corn is judged shall be decided in each county by the County Superintendent of Schools, or person in charge, and the corn after judging shall remain in his possession.

11. Blanks for reporting yields and score cards such as are used in judging corn will be furnished to each contestant. A first, second and third prize may be awarded in each county to those making the highest number of points in accordance with the following scale of points:

Yield	60
Sample (10 ears)	30
Report	10

To the three individuals scoring the highest number of points in each county Superintendent or other person in charge will arrange for ribbons of other prizes, and to the three scoring the highest number of points in the State contest prizes will be giving as follows:

1st.—A Winter Course of twelve weeks at State College, amounting to $85.

2nd.—Expenses to Farmers' Week at State College.

3rd.—Three books on agricultural subjects.

Represented at Turin.

The School of Mines of the Pennsylvania State College has been asked to cooperate with the United States Bureau of Mines, which is preparing an exhibit illustrative of the mining industries of the United States for the Great International Exposition to be held at Turin, Italy, during the coming summer.

The School of Mines will furnish a part of the material now in its Mining Museum, notably three large cases of transparencies showing views illustrating both anthracite and bituminous coal mining, slate mining, the Cornwall iron ore banks, and other views typical of the mineral industries of the State of Pennsylvania. These cases are now being packed for shipment and will be sent to Turin in a few days.

The matches will be held immediately after the brigade encampments.

EASILY DECIDED

This Question Should be Answered Easily by Bellefonte People.

Which is wiser—to have confidence in the opinions of your fellow-citizens, of people you know, or depend on statements made by utter strangers residing in far-away places? Read the following:

Mrs. C. Johnson, 365 E. Bishop St., Bellefonte, Pa., says: "I cannot say too much in praise of Doan's Kindey Pills, for they are the best remedy I ever used for backache and other symptoms of kidney trouble. At one time my back was so lame and painful that I could hardly get around and dizzy spells were common. I was restless at night and my kidneys gave me great annoyance, the kidney secretions being unnatural. On the advice of a member of my family who had used Doan's Kidney Pills with benefit, I procured a box at Green's Pharmacy Co. and they did me more good than any other medicine I had previously tried. The kidney secretions became natural and the pain and lameness in my back was removed. I heartily recommend Doan's Kidney Pills to anyone afflicted with kidney complaint." (Statement given Oct. 21 1907.)

Permanent Relief. On Nov. 23, 1909 Mrs. Johnson was interviewed and she said: "I still have unlimited confidence in Doan's Kidney Pills. They permanently cured me of kidney trouble and I have had no need of a kidney medicine during the past two years. Other members of my family have taken Doan's Kidney Pills and benefit has always been received."

Kindness.

There's nothing pays so well as kindness. A man may spend his money, and in proportion as he expends it he reduces his principal; but kindness is entirely different, for in proportion as you spend kindness your principal increases.

Kindness is an attractive thing. It brings around you many persons who think kind thoughts of you and say kind works for you; and this subtle, potent influence of having a lot of friends helping you by ther actions and their words is so very valuable that it is surprising so many self-seeking people know so little of its value.

People are glad to recognize kindness in an individual. No man can act the part if he is not sincere. He must cultivate kindness if he has little of it in his make-up. He must take an inventory of his qualities, and if the weeds of mean impulses are crowding out the delicate flowers of kindness, he should pull up those weeds and give the flowers a chance to grow.

Lincoln said: "You can catch more flies with a drop of honey than with a gallon of vinegar."

Lincoln was an exceptionally kind man, and his examples of kindness have been of great value to millions of people. "You remember," he said, "when they lay me away, let it be said of me that as I traveled along life's road I always have endeavored to pull up the thistle and plant a rose in its stead."

Life at best is short, and the only things we really get out of it are health and happiness. Money cannot buy these. But kindness can.

CAPT. GEORGE T. MICHAELS

Died at Late Home in Lock Haven—Was Born in Centre County.

Capt. George T. Michaels, of Lock Haven, but who was well known in Bellefonte and throughout Centre County, died on the afternoon of Feby. 21st. Had he lived until April 5, next, he would have rounded out three quarters of a century of life.

The Lock Haven "Express" publishes the following sketch of his life :

The subject of this sketch was born in Centre county, April, 1836, being the son of George and Catherine Michaels. He was married March 8, 1857, to Julia A. Harnish, who is also a native of Centre county. Captain Michaels enlisted in the War of the Rebellion from Centre county, November 5, 1861, in Company F, Fifty-sixth Pennsylvania Volunteer infantry, as a private. He was rapidly promoted and his rapid promotion is spoken of in Hardesty's "Lives of Presidents, Soldiers and Statesmen," as being of rare occurrence. They were earned by courageous and faithful discharge of duty. From sergeant to first sergeant, advanced December 31, 1863, to first lieutenant, date of commission January 27, 1864; to captain August 13, 1864; and to major March 17, 1865.

At the battle of Gettysburg July 1, 1863, he was severely wounded in the left arm and fell into the hands of the enemy, by whom he was detained as a prisoner until July 4, when he was recaptured by the Union forces. On account of his wound he lay in the Germantown General hospital at Philadelphia for five months. Here he was granted a wound furlough for fifteen days, at the expiration of which he reported for duty, and on May 8, 1864, he was again recaptured at the Battle of the Wilderness by the Confederates, but his same good fortune attended him and he was the next day retaken by his own men. Besides the two battles above mentioned, he also took part in the engagements at Second Bull Run, South Mountain, Antietam, Fredericksburg, Chancellorsville, the Siege of Petersburg and many other important conflicts, ending with the capitulation of General Lee at Appomattox. He received his honorable and final discharge at Philadelphia on July, 1, 1865, having been in continuous service for almost four years.

He served as a second director and was assistant postmaster under the administration of H. T. Hall. He was for several years deputy register and recorder of Clinton county. He also served as commander and adjutant of John S. Bittner post, No. 122, G. A. R., of this city. He was a consistent, Christian gentleman. Modest and unassuming, he pursued the even tenor of his way, mindful of the rights and needs of his fellow citizen, and ever ready to extend a word of encouragement or a helping hand to those in distress.

He was a prominent member of Trinity M. E. church and superintendent of the Linden Street Sunday school, and was always deeply interested in the moral and civic development of the city. Captain Michaels was a man of strong convictions, but fair-minded and charitable, with due respect for the opinions of his fellowman. His passing leaves a most lamentable void in his home, in the church, in G. A. R. circles and in the community in general.

He is survived by his widow and one daughter, Mrs. H. S. Edwards, who with her husband, resides at Lock Haven, also by two brothers, James, of Clearfield, and Daniel, of Williamsport.

The funeral took place from the late home of the deceased at 2 o'clock Friday afternoon. Services were conducted by Rev. Dr. W. P. Shriner, and burial was made in Highland cemetery.

Foley Kidney Pills.

Pig Iron is Being Shipped.

Considerable pig iron is now being shipped from the furnaces in eastern Pennsylvania. Some of them had quite a lot of it stored. This is now being disposed of rapidly, indicating that the iron trade is showing signs of improvement. Several thousand tons were forwarded from Alburtis. Pottstown and Birdsboro are also filling orders.

The demand for iron from the Bellefonte and Nittany furnaces is much greater than it was one month ago. Each day iron is being shipped, thus the large stacks on hand is growing smaller each day. This is surely a sign that business is picking up.

Foley Kidney Pills.

Just the right medicine for backache, rheumatism Bright's disease and all urinary irregularities. C. Bichler, 2315 6th Ave., Altoona, Pa., says: "For several years I was troubled with my kidneys and bladder and 'tho I had taken different medicines I received no relief. Foley Kidney Pills were brought to my notice and I started using them. The first few doses relieved me and after using only a few bottles I am entirely cured of all kidney and bladder trouble. The action of my kidneys was irregular and painfull and I was troubled with backaches and dizzy spells. Foley Kidney Pills were the means of restoring me to good health and I do not hesitate to recommend them." Sold by C. M. Parrish.

No Change in Primaries.

Owing to a division of opinion among the political leaders regarding a change of the date for the primaries, the commission appointed to revise the election laws of the state has decided to let the June date stand. There has been a general demand for a change of the date to September, as this is nearer the time of the fall election.

A preliminary report, however, was presented to the legislature by the members at the session. Important changes suggested are the abolition of personal registration in third-class cities and the institution of party primaries.

The recommendation for party primaries provides that each political party hold an election on a separate day. Registration in third-class cities is thought to be a needless expense by the commission.

The report and the bills to carry the suggestions into effect were prepared by Frank L. Pritchard, chairman, and was presented at Harrisburg last week. A simplified ballot, a modification of the old vest pocket system, is also recommended in the report.

A healthy man is a king in his own right; an unhealthy man is an unhappy slave. Burdock Blood Bitters builds up sound health—keeps you well.

Fred Davis, of Bellefonte, has resigned his position with S. H. Williams and has gone to Altoona, where he has secured a job with the Pennsylvania Railroad Company.

The supper given in the Bellefonte Methodist church, on Tuesday of last week, was an exclusively Methodist affair, and the officer of the day was the pastor, Rev. Thomas S. Wilcox.

W. A. Hess, of Whittaker, Pa., with his little son, passed through Bellefonte on Friday on his way to Boalsburg, where he resided many years ago. He is a painter and paper hanger and says he is getting along nicely.

Donald Potter is moving into the Joseph house on Curtin Street, which was occupied by the late Miss Sarah Collins. It is a very nice place to live and they will be among some of the most congenial people in the town.

Richard Lutz, who resides on the extreme end of Howard Street, Bellefonte, has placed in his home a Commercial Telephone. Please don't call him up and ask him how he likes the fish that swim under the ice on the pond at Hecla Park.

Next week Register Earle C. Tuten and wife expect to move from their present home, on Penn Street, into their residence on Linn Street, formerly occupied by E. R. Chambers Esq. This certainly is a very delightful place to reside.

L. A. Stover, of Bellefonte, is one o our prompt-paying readers of "The Republican." A day or two ago Mr. Stover called and advanced his subscription another year. A newspaper that has among its readers men of the type of Mr. Stover finds it a pleasure to exert itself to the utmost to get and print all the interesting news.

Walter Greevy, of Altoona, state organizer for the Loyal Order of Moose, passed through Bellefonte on Monday afternoon from Pittsburg where he, on Friday night, last, took in a class of 2410 new members. That's going some, isn't it? Mr. Greevy is a hustler, and his many friends here will be glad to hear of his continued success.

Mrs. Henry Lowry, of Bellefonte, left on Friday afternoon for McKeesport, where she remained over night with her daughter, Mrs. James Parsons. On Saturday she continued her journey to Leechburg, where her mother, Mrs. John Love, resides. On Friday of this week they will return to Bellefonte, where Mrs. Love will remain for sometime.

Editor Musser, of the Millheim "Journal," was in Bellefonte, on Friday, in search of some one to be an all-around man in his print shop. He finally located Harry Fulton, who for four years worked in the "Centre Democrat" office, and rendered such excellent service. Harry was very modest in saying what he could do, but his honesty won the confidence of Mr. Musser, who employed him at a nice salary.

In a short time the York Bridge Co. will commence making the repairs to the High Street bridge in Bellefonte. It will probably take a couple of months to put the bridge in the condition specified in the contract. After the work has been completed it will be a wonderful improvement. The centre truss will be entirely removed, giving vehicles a free right of way. The floor will be of concrete and brick, making it very substantial.

A. L. Auman, of Coburn, was a visitor in Bellefonte on Friday, on his way to Lock Haven. From there he went up the river to look at some timber. Mr. Auman is in the lumber business and is now cutting on the Irvin Dreese farm, located at Peru, the next station above Pleasant Gap. Most of the timber here is being cut into mine props. Mr. Auman is a very genial gentleman and it is pleasing to do business with him.

No one should miss the opportunity of seeing "The Runaway Banker" at Garman's Opera House, on Saturday evening, March 4. There will also be a matinee, at 2.30, at which the prices will be 10 and 25¢. This is a companion play to "The Old Homestead" and is a simple story of everyday rural life way down East. Many high class specialties are introduced during the play that adds interest to an already interesting production.

A very genial visitor to "The Republican" office on Saturday was Z. S. Welch, one of the regular readers of this newspaper at Howard. Mr. Welch will be 79 years of age on April 10, next, and a remarkable man he is in many respects. His health is first class and he is strong and vigorous in every way. He has been a resident of Curtin township since 1856 and was elected a Justice of the Peace in the first election held in the township, back in the sixties.

The Lock Haven Democrat of Saturday says that Mrs. W. F. Brown and Mrs. L. E. Wise, of this place, were greatly shocked that morning when they received news of the death of their mother, Mrs. S. Woomer, who resides in Bellefonte. Fortunately the news was not true of her being dead, but she is seriously ill, as is also her daughter, Mrs. Della Keeler, who resides at the same place. Mrs. Wise and Mrs. Brown left for Bellefonte immediately.

On Tuesday evening a farewell reception was tendered Rev. Dr. J. Allison Platts and family, in the Presbyterian chapel, who left on Wednesday for their new home in Wilkinsburg. It was largely attended, not only by the members of the Presbyterian church but of other churches and the public in general. Dr. Platts is not only a minister of the gospel but he is a man among men, holding the respect of all those with whom he come in to contact. Many regrets were expressed that the family were leaving. They also expressed a desire to hear of their success in the Doctor's new field of labor.

"Foley's Honey and Tar is the best cough remedy I ever used as it quickly stopped a severe cough that had long troubled me," says J. W. Kuhn, Princeton, Nebr. Just so quickly and surely it acts in all cases of coughs, colds, lagrippe and lung trouble. Refuse substitutes. Sold by C. M. Parrish.

I am just in receipt of a draft, number 36370 for Two Thousand Dollars ($2000.) in full payment of policy No. 28970, held by my late husband Arthur J. Duggan, issued Oct. 1st, 1908, by the Royal Union Mutual Life Ins. Co., of Des Moines, Iowa.

When Mr. Duggan applied for this insurance he executed his note for $72.80, being the first annual premium thereon, the note, however, remained unpaid at the time of his death, yet the Company came forward with full payment of the claim upon satisfactory proofs of death.

This should be conclusive evidence to any one that the management of the Royal Union Mutual Life Ins. Co., is absolutely fair in their dealings with their policy holders.

Respectfully,
Mrs. Maggie A. Duggan.

Receipts AND Expenditures

—OF—

CENTRE COUNTY FOR 1910

To the Honorable Ellis L. Orvis, Judge of the Court of Common Pleas of Centre County, Pennsylvania:

The Board of County Auditors, H. B. Pontius, of Bellefonte Borough, R. D. Musser, of Gregg Township, and C. U. Hoffer, of Philipsburg Borough, met at the Court House, January 2nd, 1911, in accordance with the provisions of the Act of Assembly in such cases made and provided, to audit the accounts of the various officials of the County for the year 1910.

Written notices were served on the County Commissioners, County Treasurer, Prothonotary and Sheriff to deliver all books and vouchers pertaining to their respective offices for examination and audit.

The books of the County Commissioners show an expenditure of One Hundred and Seventy-eight Thousand Six Hundred and Thirty-nine and 06-100 dollars ($178,639.06) paid out during the year 1910. The accounts of G. G. Fink, County Treasurer, were carefully examined and checked with vouchers and found to be correct, and the receipts of the office exceed the expenditures, leaving in the hands of the Treasurer a balance of Three Thousand Eight Hundred and Sixty and 95-100 dollars ($3860.95) due the County.

We also find there was collected during the year the amount of Fourteen Thousand Two Hundred and Seventy-four and 64-100 dollars ($14274.64), arising from Unseated Land Taxes and paid out to the different Townships for Road, Poor and School purposes.

We find in the hands of the Treasurer a balance of sheep funds of Three Thousand Five Hundred and Forty-three and 22-100 dollars ($3543.22), arising from Dog Tax. We find there was collected during the year 1910 Two Thousand Seven Hundred dollars ($2709.00), arising from Liquor License, and was paid out to the different Boroughs and Townships.

Upon examination of bill of fees, costs, etc., of A. B. Kimport, Prothonotary, we find there is due him from the County the sum of One Hundred Eighty-eight and 21-100 dollars ($188.21).

The account of W. E. Hurly, Sheriff, was carefully examined and found to be correct, and find there is due him from the County the sum of Two Thousand Two Hundred and Fifteen and 35-100 dollars ($2215.35).

In witness whereof we have hereunto set our hands and seals this 25th day of February, A. D. 1911.

H. B. PONTIUS, (Seal)
R. D. MUSSER, (Seal) County Auditors.
C. U. HOFFER, (Seal)

DR. SCHAD REPORTS ON W. C. T. U. CONVENTION

Gives Interesting Resume of Proceedings at Baltimore.

PUBLISHED BY REQUEST

Bellefonte Women Who Heard Report at Parlor Social at Home of Miss Myra Humes Asked that it be Printed in "The Republican."

At a parlor social, held recently at the home of Miss Myra Humes, Dr. Edith Schad read a most interesting paper on the proceedings of the thirty-seventh annual convention of the National Women's Christian Temperance Union Baltimore, which she attended. Her report proved to be so interesting that a number of ladies who were in attendance at the meeting strongly urged that it be published and suggested that the columns of "The Republican" be chosen for this purpose.

It might be explained that during the course of the convention, many members of the association visited Washington in a body to pay tribute to their former noted and honored leader, Frances E. Willard, in whose memory the State of Illinois erected a statue in the Hall of Fame at the Capitol. The services were deeply impressive, the visitors surrounding the statue in reverent affection for Miss Willard and listening to a beautiful eulogy on her life by Miss Anna A. Gordon, vice president general of the association.

Dr. Schad was a delegate to the convention from Centre and Clinton counties. Her report on the proceedings, which was listened to with the closest of attention, gave those who were unable to visit Baltimore a comprehensive idea of all that was done. Dr. Schad, in the opening sentence of her report, quoted this beautiful sentiment voiced by Mrs. Lillian M. N. Stevens, when re-elected president:

"To deal justly, to love mercy, to walk humbly, but above all, to walk with Him."

Dr. Schad's report then continued, as follows:

The thirty-seventh annual convention of the National Women's Christian Temperance Union was called to order at 9.30 o'clock, A. M., on Saturday, in the Lyric Theatre, the building having the largest seating capacity of any in Baltimore. Here, under one roof, we had a post office, railroad guides and agents, transfer station, rest rooms with colored maids and a magnificent auditorium.

—There were 623 delegates—the largest convention ever held, as Hartford had but 524. Each delegate represents 500 members.

After reading the Crusade Psalm, singing and prayer, there was the roll call, followed by the appointment of committees, etc. Then came the address by the president, Mrs. Stevens, a handsomely prepared copy of which was presented to each delegate. This was followed by a recess, when subscriptions were received--the shower of our national papers. There were received 946 subscriptions to the "Union Signal," and 5076 to the "Crusader Monthly." A telegram was ordered sent to the office girls in Evanston, telling them of the shower.

On Saturday afternoon the Corresponding Secretary and Treasurer made their reports. The Treasurer reported that $4,000 had already been paid on the new office building in Evanston, that the remaining $6,000 was on hand and would be paid as soon as the officers returned, so that the building can be dedicated on Thanksgiving day, free of debt.

Just here a telegram was received from Mr. J. C. Martin, giving $1,000 for new building, and $600 from Mrs. McDowell, of Pittsburg. In this building will be kept all national supplies and offices. Miss Rhena Mosher, general secretary of the Young People's Branch, made an excellent address and at its conclusion introduced secretaries from eighteen states, all young women full of enthusiasm. This one fact was very apparent—there are so many young women in the work.

The L. L. L., of Baltimore, was the attraction of the afternoon. There were 235 children, from almost babies up to sixteen years of age. It was a beautiful sight. The girls were in white, wore blue badges and each carried a flag. Many blue banners were also carried. The children marched down the main aisle of the theatre, divided and went upon the platform, with numerous fancy figures, etc. A dear, little girl made the address of welcome, and as she handed Mrs. Stevens a huge bouquet of white chrysanthemums, the latter smilingly remarked:

"This is the very best address of all to be made at the convention."

Many of the national superintendents gave their annual reports, all showing added interest, more zeal put into the work and more workers in the different fields.

Mrs. Martha Allen, superintendent of medical temperance, under whom I work as state superintendent, reported great progress in her line—more physicians awake to the patent medicine evil and much interest displayed in her newest work, "Alcohol and Health." A Mr. Ellis, of Syracuse, has offered to put a copy of this book into every medical library in the United States. Mrs. Allen urges the W. C. T. U. to place a copy in every town library to offset the books put there by the whiskey men.

Saturday night was "Welcome Night," and the delegates were most royally welcomed. J. Barry Mahool, the mayor of Baltimore, prefaced his remarks by this petition:

"Preach always a white life for two; let your educational work go on, until the same high standard that is put up for women, be put up and kept up for men."

Dr. Benham, pastor of the largest Presbyterian church in Baltimore, spoke for the ministerium of the city, which is composed of 345 preachers. Dr. Noble, president of Goucher College for Women, spoke for the educational interests of the city, and Mrs. Haslup, president of the Maryland Union, spoke for the W. C. T. U. These addressed were all responded to in short, witty replies by delegates.

On Sabbath morning we attended church and found as the speaker, Miss Ellen E. Stone, whom you all recall as the American missionary who was kept a prisoner for almost seven months by bandits in the mountains of Bulgaria. She told the story of her capture and of her captivity, of the little daughter born to a Bible teacher, who was also a prisoner, and how, day by day, the bandits would move them from one place to another, always keeping them away from help and outside communication until they seemed to lose all hope of ever being rescued or seeing their friends. The bandits demanded a ransom of $60,000 for their lives, and Miss Stone had to sign her name to the demand, with a quill dipped in blood from her arm.

The convention sermon was preached on Sunday afternoon by Mrs. Deborah Knox Livingston, of Rhode Island, on the life and character of Esther. Mrs. Katherine Lents Stevenson, of Massachussetts, was introduced as the all-around-the-world missionary. Her subject was "A World Vision." In her arms she carried a pole, at the end of which was a large silk American flag, and over this a streamer from every nation in the world. In her belt she wore a small flag, taken from Denver two years ago. She said that she had been on fifty-three ships and was only uncomfortable for two hours in the twenty-one months of travel. The Chinese described her "an honorable lady who goes hastily up and down China, trying to frighten the young men about whiskey and cigarettes."

The address of the entire convention was that by Richmond Pearson Hobson, of Alabama, of "Merrimac" fame. He prefaced his remarks with this statement:

"The W. C. T. U. is the greatest and most compact secular organization in the whole world. No wonder then that the liquor organ says that we have but two enemies to fight—the Anti-Saloon League and the W. C. T. U. His subject was "The Great Destroyer," and he made this wonderful statement:

"Seven hundred thousand killed and two million, one hundred thousand wounded in all the wars of the entire world for all the centuries back. In America alone seven hundred and twenty thousand die every year from drink and twenty-eight millions are mortally or seriously wounded every year. Compare this with only two million, one hundred thousand wounded by all the wars of the entire world for twenty-three centuries."

He then went into a close, microscopical analysis of blood, showing the effect of alcohol on the red and white corpuscles how the white corpuscles destroy germs as they enter the system, until alcohol comes in and paralizes these corpuscles and they no longer can do their work and the whole system is poisoned. It was a most scientific resume of the effects of alcohol on the human system. Continuing, Mr. Hobson said:

"There can be no reasonable life in this world but the life of total abstinence for the individual. What for society? The remedy must be organic treatment. You can never destroy intemperance in a wave of enthusiasm, you can never, never get a cure in high license, you can never get a cure at the hands of judges, courts, Congress, etc. But you must get down to the masses and multitudes of people; first, to the domain of man in his home, and second, to the domain of the individual and society. How do it? By a house to house canvass; see ever woman. You must have organic treatment—put the treatment in the hands of the people themselves. It must be war. First law—make your preparations, visit every home, see every woman. Second law—be prepared to wield your whole force as one, as a unit, when the time comes. In Alabama they fooled the farmers, but they did not fool the farmers' wives. So I believe in women's suffrage; it must come, it is coming. The law of strategy is: First—Wield the whole power of your army on the enemy and now a word of warning. The greatest battle in the temperance cause is coming soon. It will be found in Maine and all the forces should be prepared for it. Second—Strike the enemy where he is weakest and put in the point of the wedge; weakest in the country, so there put in the wedge, local option, and work on toward the cities.

"Across the sea there are 800,000,000 yellow men, who want America. They are not as degenerate as you think. The Chinese use less opium than the white men. You despise those Orientals as the Romans did the barbarians. But if you do not turn this curse of drink away from your doors your grandchildren will hear the 'whoop', of the yellow man on American soil.

"Suppose America does fall, your great grandchildren will not be able to go to any other land to establish a new empire. In America we are making the last stand of the race. If America falls, the human race will go down, till God in his wrath will wipe out the whole human race. The only reasonable life is the life of total abstinence. The verdict must be that this destroyer must himself be destroyed."

It was during this address, when Representative Hobson spoke of the cure for intemperance, that Mrs. Carrie Nation, who sat with the Kansas women, called out: "Give us a remedy." The next day, immense headlines in the newspapers read: "Carrie Nation broke up the large temperance meeting, etc." Mrs. Nation is a modest, refined, elderly woman, of probably seventy, and not more than five feet tall. She attracted no attention whatever, except as women collected about her to buy her little hatchets. She had a small satchel on a strap and sold these hatchets as a source of revenue for a woman's home in Kansas.

Monday evening was "An evening with the W. C. T. U." The L. L. L's. were represented by 20 young people, and chiblren in costumes and flags, sent from the countries direct—from Egypt, Chili and Bulgaria, a Mohammedan and a Norwegian, a boy and girl from New Zealand and Iceland, Scotland, China, England, Germany, Sweden and our own America, last, with the Stars and Stripes.

Madam Baraket brought greetings from Syria, and as she stood before that impressive audience, she held in her hand a little, old torn and soiled flag—our flag. She said the boys on Mount Lebanon were crazy for that flag, but to them I said:

"I won't give it, because if I die over here, I want the American flag over my body."

Great applause greeted this sentiment. Greetings from the Transvaal, South Africa, were brought by a charming young woman, Miss Buchanan, president of the Johannesburg Union. She, in part, said:

"In the Transvaal we have a temperance council of men, and a splendid lodge of Good Templars, and these two lodges join in and work with the W. C. T. U."

From Mexico there came this message: "One thousand women in one year joined the W. C. T. U., and their last convention occupied two full days."

Mrs. Wilbur F. Craft brought a message from Iceland, "the roof of the world." There is but one saloon in Iceland, no brewery and no distillery, for there is no green grain nor fruit there. They are a very moral people. Liquor is sent to them from Scotland, Denmark and other nearby countries. An excellent temperance law will go into effect in 1912. She met and talked with 200 women, and this is the message they sent: "Take the love and greetings from the women in Iceland to the women in the United States."

Miss Hughes, a missionary from China, brought greetings from that country. An old gentleman from the West was introduced. He remarked that a friend had said to him:

"Why throw your vote away?"

"I have not thrown my vote away," I replied. "I have thrown it up to the throne of God and there it will be until Jesus comes."

Several times during the convention little babies were carried to the stage. Mrs. Stevens and Miss Gordon tied broad white ribbons on their wrists and the entire convention rose and sang: "When He Cometh, to Make up His Jewels."

Mothers and daughters were introduced, twenty-two in all. Mrs. Stevens and her daughter, Mrs. Leavett, of Maine, followed by two each from Michigan, Illinois, Nebraska, New Jersey, Pennsylvania and other States. Mrs. Fessenden, of Massachussetts, gave a short talk on "The Advantages of a Convention to an Individual," making these points in her talk: a. Fellowship. b. Broad outlook it gives to one. c. Inspiration in comparisons, conventions forming excellent instruments for puncturing inflated persons.

A few of the introductions made I have noted here as follows:

1. President and Vice President of the Woman's Federation of Clubs.

2. President of the Just Government League.

3. President of the Women's Suffrage Club.

4. President of the Baltimore branch of the Missionary Society of the Methodist Episcopal church.

5. Members of Press Association, of yearly meetings, urging the suppression of sensational reports of murders, scandal and other crime, also of all objectionable advertising.

6. Pastors of Methodist Episcopal churches.

7. President of the Anti-Saloon League of Maryland; Mrs. Posey, from the Yearly Meeting of Friends; Mrs. Bailey from the Modern Maccabees of Michigan; Mrs. Inglehart, of Chicago, president of the Frances E. Willard hospital; Isaac Wilson, a Friends minister, from Canada; Dr. Dunwiddie, president of the I. O. O. F.; Belva Lockwood, 80 years old, the first woman lawyer to practice before the United States Supreme Court, dressed in a crushed strawberry suit, wearing diamond rings and brooch; eight little newsboys, who supplied the dailies, each being given a subscription to the American Crusader for one year; and lastly, the two fine looking policmen and four firemen, who kept guard over that immense throng of people. The policemen both signed the total abstinence pledge and Mrs. Stevens pinned a badge on the lapel of their coats.

Tuesday evening was given over to the Demonstration Departments. Mrs. Allen's work came in the third division. She had two physicians, a young man from Baltimore and myself, with medicine cases; four trained nurses equipped as Red Cross women, and the banner of the Medical Temperance Department won by Alabama and carried by the Alabama State Superintendent.

On Wednesday we had reports from many national superintendents, among them being the following:

Mrs. Oberholtzer, of Pennsylvania, superintendent of school savings banks, reported $300,000 in Pittsburg, and $870,000 at this time, and over $5,000,000 since the work was begun.

Mrs. Peterson, of Texas, gave an excellent report of her work among colored people.

Mrs. Edith Smith Davis, of Wisconsin, superintendent of Scientific Temperance Instruction, reported 15,000 school teachers on the pledge roll.

The engineer of the Lyric, fifteen years ago and now, as well, remembered Miss Willard and asked to meet Mrs. Stevens. He was introduced.

Under the flower mission report came the interesting note that 2,000,000 bouquets were given out last year, and that of this number 190,000 were given out in Kansas.

Thursday evening, the last night of the convention, was given over to the presidents of States having made a gain in membership. We came in the first group, having a gain of over 500. On Friday we went to Washington and participated in the meeting at the Willard statue.

Two Deaths at Philipsburg.

The Philipsburg Journal says that after many weeks of patient suffering from an internal cancerous affection, John Swift, a well known resident of Philipsburg, expired Friday night. The deceased was born in Bradford, Yorkshire, England, on January 11th, 1832, making his age 79 years, 1 month and 13 days. He went to Philipsburg about 31 years ago. On March 29th, 1891, he was married to Mrs. John West, who survives, together with her daughters, Mrs. Philip Saroucy, of Altoona, and Mrs. Harold Eboch, of Augusta, Ga. He also leaves one brother, Joseph Swift, and one sister, Mrs. William Simler, both of Philipsburg, and the following half brothers and step brothers, and step sisters, viz: Thomas, William, John and Emanuel Cranshaw, all of Philipsburg, and Mrs. John Myers, of Norristown. The deceased had a large circle of friends who will with profound sorrow learn of his death. The funeral took place from the family residence on Monday afternoon at 3 o'clock, Rev. F. T. Eastment officiating.

Mrs. Ellen Moore, wife of David Moore, of South Philipsburg, who had been in poor health for more than a year, passed away at 11.45 on Saturday. The deceased, who was aged 51 years, was born in Taylor township, this county, and was the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Pool. She was a member of the United Brethren church, and a lady of many excellent qualities. Besides her husband she leaves 12 children, one brother, Christ Pool, and two sisters, Mrs. Thomas Vaughn and Mrs. Daniel Moore, both of Sandy Ridge.

Can Carnegie Die Poor.

The Harrisburg "Telegraph" says that a few days after he had given away $10,000,000 to be used for the promotion of international peace, Andrew Carnegie got a letter from Denver asking for four new libraries.

He put his hand into his pocket to see if he had any spare change left and drew out $91,000. "There, boys," he said, "you're welcome to these few pennies, if they'll do you any good."

All the indications are that Mr. Carnegie's hope of dying poor is a very small one, indeed. His fortune seems to be like a rosebush—the more you prune it the more luxuriantly it grows; or like a field of alfalfa, which, they say, is a hard thing to get started but impossible to stop once it is started.

As the time grows shorter, Mr. Carnegie will probably begin to cut and haggle at his bank account more desperately. He will throw it out in chunks of $100,000,000, instead of $10,000,000, only to receive the dispiriting information that his widow's curse is fuller than it ever was before. Poor Carnegie! Isn't it too bad?

A Boyish Fantasy.

I wonder if ever there'll come a time when the woods are cool and the fishing's prime; when the wild birds sing and the fellows trill and whistle and call, as fellows will! I wonder if ever there'll come a day when the wood's all chopped and piled away, when the walk is swept and the cow is staked on the picket line and the yard is raked; when the lawn is mowed and the errands run; when the water's pumped and the chores are done; when the baby's rocked and put to sleep, and there's nothing to rake or chop or sweep, when a boy can look around and see that everything's as it ought to be; that all of the work he had is through; that there isn't a thing he ought to do, and a boy can breathe a restless sigh when he hears the fellows shouting by and toss his hat with a wealth of joys, and run right off with the other boys! Such time may come and you may see, but it never, never come to me!

I wonder if ever there'll come a day when the doughnut crock's not hid away, when the cooky jar is not concealed and the cakes and pies all stand revealed to boyish eyes and boyish hands; when the bowl of nuts and raisins stands in easy reach; when there are no locks, or high top shelves or hidden crocks; when the figs and dates are left right where a boy can reach without a chair; when the peach preserves and the ginger jar are right where the kitchen dishes are; when a boy won't have to stretch and climb for all the sweet things all the time; when the layer raisins can be found if a boy just hardly looks around: and a boy can run right in and bring out sugar or doughnuts or anything that he likes to eat and be most kind to all his chums—and his ma won't mind! Such day may come and you may see, but it never, never come to me!

I wonder if ever there'll be a place where a boy can go with a dirty face, and his hair not combed and his ears scrubbed, and his clothes not brushed and his shoes not rubbed, when his cheeks and hands wont bear the sign of recent suds and his face wont shine with a lustrous glow that is kin to pain much more than the mist resembles rain! I wonder if ever we'll come to see, a boy who is just as he'd like to be; whose eyes don't smart from the soapy spray when his mother scrubs in the good old way; when she wipes from his face the sudsy foam and pulls his hair with the ancient comb; when she rubs his neck where the collar hides and scrubs his hands where the thick dust bides—and looks at him when her task is through, and says, "There, son—I guess you'll do! Is there such a time and place? Maybe—but it never, never come to me."—J. W. Foley.

Chas. M. McCurdy, president of the Association, accepted the gift in a neat and interesting address. He also spoke in high praise of Miss Rhoads for making it possible for the Y. M. C. A Diplomat

How He Got His Start In His Profession.

By SAMUEL E. BRANT.

Copyright, 1910, by American Press Association.

James Maitland, son of an admiral in the U. S. navy, fell in love with and married Mlle. Julie de Lavalle, the daughter of a French diplomat who had spent many years in the French service, a considerable portion of which time he resided in Washington. M. de Lavalle never represented his country as ambassador; he was an adept at secret methods then in vogue between nations, but, since the open diplomacy of the late Secretary Hay, now largely done away with. When any quick Machiavellian work was to be executed it fell to Lavalle.

Maitland and Mlle. de Lavalle were married while the groom was employed in the state department. At the time the Panama canal was being located and there was any amount of chicanery perpetrated both as to its location and the prevention of its location both by Central and North Americans. Then came young Maitland's opportunity. One morning the secretary sent for him, handed him a dispatch and told him that he wished him to take it to the United States consul at Vera Cruz, who would see that it reached its destination.

Delighted at being thus enabled to make a beginning in his profession, Maitland took the dispatch—it was placed in an official envelope of the state department addressed to the consul—and was about to leave when the secretary said to him:

"It is essential that the information contained in that envelope reaches our consul in Vera Cruz on or before the 13th. After that date it will be too late. It is well that you should know that its prompt delivery will involve the making or the failure to make millions of dollars by certain capitalists. You will therefore be very guarded in speaking of your mission and watch well the dispatch. I send it to Vera Cruz by you in order that no one in this country may know its ultimate destination. Nevertheless there are plenty of spies about, and we may have them right here in the state department. Be careful, and good luck to you."

When Maitland went home and with the exhilaration of youth told his wife of his mission, its importance, considering the interests involved, and all that, she failed to show a similar enthusiasm.

"What is it, pet?" he said. "You don't seem pleased."

"Jimmie," she replied, "you will never get it through."

"Why not?"

"They will steal it from you."

"What makes you think so, Julie?"

"From a little girl I have heard my father tell the ways people take to outwit one another. I know all about it. You know nothing."

However, the little woman packed her husband's suit case—all the baggage he proposed to take—then took the dispatch to the library, and when she returned handed her husband a box of cigars. He opened it and removed the top layers and below was an envelope addressed to Senora Sanchez, Mexico City, in Mme. Maitland's own hand.

"Little one, you're a brick," said the young diplomat. "I see your scheme. It would never do to leave the dispatch in my suit case under cover of a state department envelope, would it?"

"No. Now, Jimmie, do be careful of the suit case and don't let it out of your sight a moment."

Maitland gave her a dozen kisses, picked up the suit case, called a carriage and started for the train. He reached New York during the afternoon and went at once on board the steamer which was to sail early the next morning. He was about to lock his stateroom door on the suit case, when, remembering that there might be other keys that would unlock it, he took the dispatch out from under the cigars and put it in his pocket. If he was followed, with a view of stealing the document, his baggage was surely the first place the thief would look for it. In order to discover if the case had been opened for the purpose, in replacing the cigars he laid all of those on the top row with the ends in the same direction except one, which he reversed. Having done this he went on deck for air.

The next morning Maitland found himself out on the Atlantic ocean heading for the Gulf of Mexico. He walked the deck alone, having resolved not to make a single acquaintance. In the afternoon he went to his stateroom for a nap, and before lying down it occurred to him to examine his suitcase. Not that he really expected to find evidence of any one having been there, but simply to satisfy himself that it was as he had left it.

What was his astonishment to find every cigar in the box laid in the same direction. The one he had placed differently had been reversed.

The discovery took his breath away. After all, his wife was right. If there were those on his track who had already shown such skill in hunting for the document, what more would they do? Instinctively he clapped his hand to his breast pocket. The dispatch was there. But he did not feel assured that it would be there when he arrived at Vera Cruz. He vowed that no one should during the passage come within arm's length of him.

He napped in his berth and read a novel which he had brought with him during the afternoon and evening, not leaving his stateroom. The next morning he passed on deck. He expected every moment that some man would attempt to make his acquaintance. No man did, but a very pretty young woman sitting in a steamer chair looked at him as he passed her and cast down her long Spanish lashes. Every time he passed in pacing back and forth she gave him the same glance and the same downward sweep. He suspected her at once and put himself on his guard.

With the exception of the Spanish woman there was no evidence of any person or persons shadowing him. But on the second day out an old lady with very white hair came up the companionway and looked about for a seat. The ship was rolling, and Maitland, taking hold of her arm, supported her to a steamer chair. She thanked him, but he would have nothing to do with her. Surely he had reason to suspect every one. The old lady besides thanking him made some commonplace remark, to which it would have been polite for him to respond, but he turned from her as though she had some infectious disease.

Several times after that he surveyed her from a distance and noticed that she looked very peculiar. Indeed, after scrutinizing her one afternoon as she sat dozing in her steamer chair it occurred to him that she was a young person disguised as an old woman. When the day before the ship was due at Vera Cruz he saw her and the young Spanish woman sitting side by side and talking confidentially he made up his mind that they had been sent out from Washington to steal his dispatch and that one or both of them had already opened his suit case. Probably one did the work while the other kept watch.

A few hours before his arrival in port Maitland went to his stateroom, took the dispatch from his pocket and looked at it. He felt very happy. If he had got it so far on the journey despite those who were trying to get it from him surely he could do what little remained. Replacing it, he picked up his cigarette case, which he had left on a shelf, lighted a cigarette and, lying down with his novel, began to read. He soon became drowzy and fell asleep.

When he awoke the ship was in port. He felt nauseated. Something had happened. He clapped his hand to his side pocket.

The dispatch was gone.

"Beaten after all," he moaned.

Starting up, he staggered out and on to the deck. No one had gone ashore. A last hope occurred to him. He would have the two women arrested on a trumped up charge. There they were near the companionway. He rushed forward and, seeing a policeman on the dock, beckoned to him. The man met him on the companionway, and Maitland, slipping a ten dollar bill into his hand, told him that there were two women thieves on board who had robbed him. When the women reached the dock they were taken into custody. They made a great ado at their arrest, asserting their innocence.

"I am an American," said the old lady, "and I demand to be taken before the United States consul."

"I will take you to the consulate," said Maitland, "provided your confederate will consent to go with us."

The old lady persuaded the other woman to make no objection, assuring her that it was their best course. Maitland called a carriage, and the three travelers entered, the policeman climbing to the box. On reaching the consulate Maitland insisted that the Spanish woman go in with them. He did not dare leave her in the carriage. She seemed indifferent about it, and the three went in together. The consul being engaged at the time they were placed in the waiting room.

While waiting, Maitland, facing the old lady, scrutinized her. What was there that was familiar about her? Suddenly—the Spanish woman's back was turned—she gave him a smile.

He recognized his wife.

Rising, Julie went into the hall, Maitland following her.

"Don't worry," she said. "It's safe."

"Where?"

"In my corsage."

"How did you come by it?"

"I've had it all the time. When I handed you the cigar box in Washington it contained a dummy. I kept the dispatch."

"Who opened my suit case?"

"The woman in there."

"How do you know?"

"I saw plainly that she had been sent to delay the delivery of the dispatch and, pretending that I was on the same errand, won her confidence, and we agreed to work together. After she found the envelope was not in your suit case she was sure you had it on your person. You were very careless to leave your cigarettes in your stateroom. She picked the lock with a skeleton key, went in and replaced your cigaretes with those that had been drugged. When you were asleep she robbed you."

"And the dummy? What did she say when she discovered that?"

"She cried. Had she secured the dispatch she would have been paid $100,000."

While Julie was explaining she was opening her dress, took out the real dispatch and handed it to her husband. Returning to the room he had left, he told the Spanish woman that he had found the missing article, apologized and said she might go where she liked.

When Maitland delivered his dispatch his wife did not appear in the transaction. He was well launched in the profession he had chosen.
